SUES ON CASTELLANE DEBTS LONDON MAN WANTS $377.000 OUT OF ANNA GOLLD'S INCOME.

He Deals in Bric-a-Brac, and Produces Drafts Accepted by the Castellanes Injunction Here to Bestrain the Countess's Trustees From Paring Her More Than $250,000 of Her $900.000 a Year Until He Is Paid.

Claims for $261.412 against Anna Gould, Countess de Castellane, and her husband, assigned by Asher Wertheimer, London dealer n bric-A-brac, to Anton J. Ditmar of this city, and claims about to mature for $115,857 more | city. a total of $377,289 are the basis of a temporary injunction obtained yesterday from Justice Flizgerald in the Supreme Court here to restrain George J Gould, Edwin Gould, Howard Gould and Helen M. Gould, as trustees under the will of their father, Jay Gould, from paying the Countess Castellane any income from her father's estate until the further order of the court. The order is returnable on Dec 3. The injunction was issued in an action to have the court set apart a portion of the income due to the Countess from the estate of her father in order to pay the plaintiff as her creditor. Ten drafts are set forth in the complaint, which were drawn on the Count and Countess jointly, from Feb 26, 1897, to Oct. 12, 1898, and were accepted by the Count and Countess They aggregate £67.317. Only £13,413 were paid and the suit is in part for the difference. But it is also sought to have her watched with great interest."

The foregoing statement being shown to Judge John F. Dillon, he said:
"No complaint or infunction had been served and therefore I have no information as to the character of the suit. I am a counsellor of the trustees of the estate of Jay Gould, whose will provides that his daughter Anna, now the Countess Castellane, is entitled to one-sixth part, speaking generally, of his estate. She is not entitled to any part of the capital or principal sum of that estate. The will of Mr. Gould further provides in substance that the income is to be a trust fund in the hands of the trustees, to be appropriated for the support and maintenance of his daughter, and that she cannot anticipate of dispose of any part of the income until it is actually received by her, and that until so received it shall not be liable for her debts or the debts of any husband; and undoubtedly the trustees will feel it to be their duty to have this provision in the will carried out in its full extent or as far as is possible. The Countess Castellane has no control, nor has the court any control over the principal sum, which goes to her children after her death.

"In the foregoing statement it is said that the creditors maintain that in the recent pro-principal sum, which goes to her children after her death.

"In the foregoing statement it is said that the creditors maintain that in the recent proceedings in Paris, whereby Mr. George Gould was appointed guardian for his sister, the idea of Mr. Gould's family was to get possession of the Countess de Castellane's income and force her creditors to settle on their own terms: which is obviously a mistake, as the only effect of that proceeding is to prevent her from incurring fresh obligations without the consent of her brother."

FULLER HELD ON MURDER CHARGE. Dragnet Out in the Keating Case in Rochester

ROCHESTER, Nov. 26 - Herbert Fuller, arrested last week as a suspect in the Keating murder case, and against whom the police publicly said there was but a weak case, was discharged this morning in the case of vagrancy and immediately rearrested on a charge of

As a result of the feeling aroused by the murder of Theresa Keating, whose body was discovered behind a billboard on Davis street on Wednesday morning, Chief of Police J. P. Cleary issued an order to-day for the arrest of all disreputable characters who have no visible means of support, all strangers who cannot give a good account of themselves, and all criminals whose records are known to the police. Scores of private detectives are bending their energies to the solution of the case, spurred on by the

to the solution of the case, spurred on by the offer of $1,000 reward.

The inquest in the Keating case, which was postponed from Saturday to this afternoon at 2 o'clock, was adjourned until to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock. A fifteen-year-old girl named Pauline Cook, who lives on North Union street, says she passed the billboard behind which the body was found at 9 o'clock last Tuesday night and heard means. She saw some one strike a match and thought it boys playing. She is now convinced she heard Miss Keating. The police regard this evidence as a clue, as it seems to relieve the case of theories that the marder was committed in a nearby building and that the body was carried to the place where it was found.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 26.—The directors of the Belle-Meade model factory town met here to-day and elected the Rev. Dr. David J. Burrell, of the Marble Collegiate Church, New York, a member of the board. The company was organized last April with a capital stock of $350,000. Its object is to found a factory town for the social and industrial betterment of people in congested centres. Dr. Josiah Strong and his associate, Dr. W. H. Talman, of the League for Social Service of New York, have entire charge of the social and industrial operations.

A plant for the manufacture of high grade candles has already been completed at Bellement and the directors expected to inaugurate others by the spring. Building operations have been begin for the exection of homes for the working people. Every home will have a plot of ground large enough for a flower garden in front and a vegetable garden in the rear. The company has planned to erect in the spring a large building for the use of the community at large containing a library, public baths, public laundry, a hall and meeting places for societies and ologes. This is said to be the first at large in this country to found a town where a variety of manufacturers and an army of employees under the best social and industrial conditions may be associated for the interest attempt in this country to found a town where a variety of manufacturers and an army of employees under the best social and industrial conditions may be associated for the interest alike of employer and employee.

The unusual thing about the case is that he was convicted in the Special Sessions last April and the Justices of that court therafter directed that a new trial be given him. Goldfoole, Cohn & Lind, whom he consulted, looked into the law and concluded that he could apply for a new trial to the same court on the ground of newly discovered evidence. They made the application and it was granted. Then they had the case transferred to General Sessions and Tischler established an alibi.
